GLOBAL HEALTH SECURITY PROGRAMME THEORY OF CHANGE

Activities

Fleming Fund

International Health Regulations Strengthening

UK Public Health Rapid Support Team

Global Health Security
Diplomacy

UK Vaccine Network

Global Antimicrobial Resistance Innovation Fund

Outputs

Capacity strengthened

Technical support successfully provided

Improved infrastructure and equipment

Data and analyses generated and shared

Decision makers engaged at all levels

New effective tools and solutions researched and developed

Intermediate outcomes

Stronger global and regional governance and leadership with key role for World Health Organization, Food and Agriculture Organization, World Organisation for Animal Health, United Nations Environment Programme

Strong and resilient health systems, with core International Health Regulations capabilities

Decision makers at all levels are convinced of need of action of Global Health Security Diplomacy and political space created to fund global health security policies and programmes

Evidence informed policy and programming at all levels supports preparedness

New effective tools and solutions made more available and accessible to lowand middle- income countries

Long term outcomes

Building on robust preparedness and drawing on regional and international support as needed, low- and middle-income countries have improved capacity, motivation and incentives to

Prevent and reduce the likelihood of public health emergencies such as outbreaks and antimicrobial resistance

Detect threats early and successfully

Respond rapidly and successfully to public health emergencies from all origins (including zoonotic and climate change-related)

Impact

Support the achievement of the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) - and in particular SDG3 Good health and wellbeing and SDG8 Decent work and economic growth

Global population including the UK, safe and secure from global health security threats

The UK is recognised as a science and tech superpower

Global Health Security Programme Principles

Alignment

